“ I also remember walking to Zemsky's to see Grandma when she was working. I loved going there because she would make us feel so special with how she would show us off to her friends there. When I was older and got a crazy bug to make purses, she bought all of them! I shipped them out to her from Washington. Again, making me feel so special. She was a first class Grandma. Sweet, gentle & kind. And strong too. Raising 8 kids in a tiny two bedroom apartment in Chicago must of been rough. Most people would go running for the hills, but Grandma along with Grandpa raised nice kids who are now nice people. I love you Grandma.

“ Grandma Romo,

You will truly be missed, but we take comfort to know you are at peace as you begin your journey to join your parents, brothers, and grandpa. We are truly blessed the dear Lord placed you in our life's path, because you were a great mother, grandmother, and great grandmother.

“ What I remember most about my mother is the same as what Russell says, that she always asked how others where doing. She did this on the last time I saw her (while she could still speak) she asked me how others were. But there is something that I will carry of her to the end of my days... she never ever said a mean word or have a negative thought about anyone and she treated everyone with kindness

“ i remember when we were little, if grandma was working, walking over to see grandma at zemsky's. she would be so happy to see us and was so proud of Al and I she would introduce us to all her coworkers. grandma was a great woman who worked hard and loved her family. grandma (and grandpa) raised great children who in turn raised great grandchildren. grandma's legacy is that she raised a great family she was proud of.

I remember walking over to see Grandma at Zemsky's too! I loved going there because Grandma made us feel so special with how she showed us off to all her friends there. Then when I got a crazy bug to make purses, again she made me feel so special because she bought all of them! (My only customer :-)) Grandma was so sweet and gentle, yet so strong to raise 8 kids in a tiny Chicago apartment. We love you Grandma!

“ Mom, I will miss seeing you every week, I enjoyed stopping over and seeing your face and asking how you are feeling. But before you would answer you would ask me how is Blanca (being she was sick), how is Chach, Nick, Patrick, Samara, Nico, Viviana, Carmen (My Mom wanted to know how everyone else was before she would answer how she was feeling that day. Her eyes would light up when asking about everyone waiting for a answer.) I have seen you getting older the last two years and would come home feeling sad that her age is starting to catch up to her body. You have lived a long life seeing all the events happening in this world. I would remind you that you have met all your grandkids and great grandkids and we have pictures to prove it. They all know Grandma Romo from Chicago. Love your son Russell
